Proposed Project

1. Studies Safety for Workers' Eyes: Testing the Effectiveness of Theoretically-Based Eye Injury Prevention Messages—NEW—National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH)—Despite evidence that at least 90% of workplace eye injuries are preventable, safety eye wear use among workers is disappointingly low. According to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) and results from the 1988 National Health Interview Survey Occupation Health Supplement, more than 600,000 occupational eye injuries occur annually. Sixteen percent of eye injuries occur among construction with carpenters being at particular risk given the nature of their work.

Research has been conducted on the nature and extent of eye injuries among workers, but few studies have explored the behavioral aspects of the use of safety eye wear. To date, no one has used behavioral theory to examine the use of safety eye wear among union carpenters or develop a program that would increase safety eye wear use.

The goals of this investigation are to: (1) estimate the number of carpenters who are currently wearing protective eye wear by direct observation and pre-intervention survey in the study sample; (2) develop an eye wear safety promotion campaign geared toward carpenters, their first-line supervisors, and contractors based on results from focus groups and using the theory of planned behavior; (3) increase the use of protective eye wear among carpenters by administering the eye safety messages to carpenters, their first-line supervisors, and contractors; and (4) determine the effectiveness of the messages by comparing the use of safety eye wear among carpenters before and after the campaign by direct observation, post-intervention survey, and focus groups.

The pre- and post-intervention survey instruments will assess carpenters' use of eye wear before and after the health communication message. In addition, based on the theory of planned behavior, the questionnaire will address workers behavioral intentions, attitudes, subjective norms, and perceived behavioral control.

Using a quasi-experimental design, the data collected in this study will assess the effectiveness of theory-based messages to increase the use of safety eye wear when compared to a control group. This information will provide public health investigators as well as carpenter safety officers with a theory-driven effective eye injury prevention program and the tools to implement it. The total annual burden hours is 0.
