discontinuance and removal of the traffic control system on the main tracks and sidings, between milepost CB0.7 and milepost CB17.2, on the Dean Subdivision, Detroit Service Lane, near Dean, Michigan, a distance of approximately 16.5 miles. The proposed changes consist of the conversion of all power-operated switches to hand operation, removal of all existing electric locks, all signals, and govern train movements by Direct Traffic Control Rules.

The reason given for the proposed changes is that traffic density does not warrant retention of the signal system.
