Take notice that the Trial Staff of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (Commission) will convene a second plenary conference in the above-referenced cases on Tuesday, August 26, 2003 at 10 a.m. in Hearing Room 1 at the offices of the Commission, 888 1st Street, Washington, DC 20426. The conference will continue to be held as a settlement conference pursuant to Rule 602 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 18 CFR 385.602. Therefore, participation at the conference will be limited to the Identified Entities listed above, interveners in the instant dockets, and Trial Staff.

At the conference, Trial Staff plans to initially meet with the Identified Entities and all interveners to discuss the overall status of the proceeding. In that regard, Trial Staff plans to discuss with all the parties procedures that can be adopted to streamline the discovery and trial phases of the instant case for those entities that cannot be removed from the case by means of settlement or dismissal prior to September 3, 2003. It would be Trial Staff's aim to find a way to preserve fruitful settlement discussions for those cases that do not settle or are not dismissed before September 3, 2003. Similarly, Trial Staff is mindful of the numerous petitions for rehearing and requests for clarification that have been filed and would like to discuss the ramifications of those pleadings and potential Commission action on those filings.

Thereafter, Trial Staff proposes, as necessary, to meet with the Identified Entities and the Intervener Groups. As time permits, Trial Staff would also be willing to meet with individual Identified Entities about the particular status of their cases.

All parties with questions regarding this second plenary conference may contact Joel M. Cockrell at 202-502-8153, Edith A. Gilmore at 202-502-8632, or Janet K. Jones at 202-502-8165.

Application of the Primary Function Test for Gathering on the Outer Continental Shelf; Notice of Public Conference

August 14, 2003.

Take notice that on September 23, 2003, the Commission will convene a public conference in the above captioned proceeding. The purpose of the conference will be to explore whether the Commission should reformulate its test for defining nonjurisdictional gathering in the shallow waters of the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) and if so what the new test should be.

The Commission has considered its offshore gathering policy a number of times in the past decade.¹ Nevertheless, FERC, 193 F. Supp. 2d 54 (D.D.C., January 11, 2002), appeal pending sub nom. Williams Companies, et al. v. FERC, No. 02-5056 (DC Cir.) (appeal of district court ruling on motion that FERC did not have authority under the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (OCSLA) to issue regulations requiring gas service providers on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) to submit quarterly reports of services provided).

a satisfactory definition of gathering under the Natural Gas Act has remained elusive. A clear, consistent approach to offshore gathering is needed to protect producers and customers from the market power of third party transporters and to avoid different jurisdictional outcomes for companies that perform essentially the same economic function.

Background

A. Evolution of the Primary Function Test

Although section 1(b) of the Natural Gas Act states that the provisions of that act do not apply "to the production or gathering of natural gas," the act itself does not define those terms. The Commission has defined gathering as "the collecting of gas from various wells and bringing it by separate and several individual lines to a central point where it is delivered into a single line."² The Supreme Court has added that "production" and "gathering" are terms "narrowly confined to the physical acts of drawing the gas from the earth and preparing it for the first stages of distribution."³ These definitions have been useful in describing gathering as a concept. Nevertheless, as the courts have recognized, "the line between gathering and transportation is inherently elusive."⁴ Attempts to establish a functional test, useful in the context of specific proceedings, resemble the pursuit of a desert mirage. Historically, the tendency has been to announce a particular physical characteristic that could be used to identify nonjurisdictional gathering, only to substitute other criteria later to reflect changes in the industry or in the evolution of Commission policy.⁵ In FERC, 90 F.3d 536, 539 n.2 (DC Cir. 1996) ("Gathering is the process of taking natural gas from the wells and moving it to a collection point for further movement through the pipeline's principal transmission system.") (quoting Northwest Pipeline Corp. v. FERC, 905 F.2d 1403, 1404 n.1 (10th Cir. 1990)).

⁵ For many years, the Commission employed two principal tests to differentiate (primarily onshore) transportation from gathering facilities. The "behind-the-plant" test presumes that all facilities located between the wellhead and a processing plant are non-jurisdictional gathering lines, while facilities downstream of the processing plant are presumptively transportation facilities. See Phillips Petroleum Co., 10 FPC 246 (1951), rev'd in part on other grounds sub nom. Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Wisconsin, 347 U.S. 672 (1954). For gas that
