Proposed Project

Evaluation of the Sexually Transmitted Disease (STD) Faculty Expansion Program—New—National Center for HIV, STD, and TB Prevention (NCHSTP), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Background

Primary care physicians play a significant role in STD prevention and control. Diagnosing, treating, reporting, partner notification, and patient counseling which emphasizes appropriate prevention messages are all important physician contributions to STD control. In the curricula of most medical schools and residency programs, STDs and the role of public health in control and prevention receive little emphasis for primary care physicians. To address this lack of training, CDC has implemented the STD Faculty Expansion Program (FEP), which aims to improve the capacity of primary care physicians to diagnose, treat, and prevent STDs.

The FEP provides medical schools with funding for an additional faculty member. This faculty person develops and implements curriculum for training medical students and residents, develops collaborative relationships with local health departments, and coordinates STD clinical experiences for medical students and residents. The potential long-term impacts of this STD-related training include: Increased physician awareness of STDs; greater comfort and confidence in counseling patients; increased case reporting and partner management; and ultimately lower STD incidence.

This project is an evaluation of the FEP, because the outcomes of greatest relevance (increased physician awareness, increased collaboration with public health departments, decreased STD incidence) will occur only after students and residents who are currently receiving the enhanced training go into practice.

Four medical schools—Morehouse School of Medicine, University of Alabama at Birmingham, Louisiana State University Medical Center, and the University of California Los Angeles School of Medicine—currently are receiving support under the FEP. The evaluation of the FEP consists of a survey of third-year medical students at the four currently funded schools and a sample of third-year medical students in all other U.S. medical schools. It also includes interviews with key informants at the four currently funded medical schools and the public health departments with which they are working. A paper-and-pencil survey instrument will be administered to the students in the four FEP schools in a classroom or clinic setting or through the school mail distribution system. The survey instrument will be distributed to the sample of students from all other medical schools using express mail. Survey topics will include:

- Hours of clinical and didactic training received during the first three years of medical school;
