¹ Example: Transfer of existing PIP trait by traditional breeding, such as from field corn to sweet corn.

² Example: Stacking PIP traits within a crop using traditional breeding techniques.

³ EPA-initiated amendments shall not be charged fees.

VII. How to Pay Fees

Applications (or other types of requests) should be submitted to the Agency, at the address given in Unit VIII below. The applicant should identify the category number (1 through 90) that he believes applies to the action, explain why that category applies, and specify the amount of fee due for that particular action. These notations should be made in the comments section of the application form (EPA Form 8570-1), or in a submittal letter. If the applicant is applying for a fee waiver, the applicant should provide sufficient documentation as described in FIFRA section 33(b)(7). The applicant for a fee waiver may want to consult the Agency's fee waiver guidance for further information (<http://www.epa.gov/pesticides/fees/questions/waiver.htm>). The applicant should not send payment at the time of application.

Thereafter, EPA performs a screen on the application to determine that the category is correct, and assigns a unique identification number to each covered pesticide registration application for which payment is expected. EPA notifies the applicant of the unique identification number together with instructions for submitting payment. This information is sent by mail and by either e-mail or fax at the applicant's request.

After receiving EPA's acknowledgment of the application and its unique identification number, the applicant may submit payment of the fee to the address provided in the acknowledgment. All payments should be in U.S. currency by check, bank draft, or money order drawn to the order of the Environmental Protection Agency, and should include the unique identification number assigned to the application.
