

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCYPrivacy Act of 1974; System of Records and Routine Uses

AGENCY: Central Intelligence Agency.

ACTION: Notice of final statement of general routine uses and Privacy Act systems of records notices of the Central Intelligence Agency.

SUMMARY: The Central Intelligence Agency has undertaken and completed an Agency-wide review of its Privacy Act systems of records. As a result of this review, in the May 24 2005 issue of the Federal Register, the Agency solicited public comments on the complete set of proposed revised Privacy Act systems of records notices, the proposed modification of one of its existing routine uses, and the proposed addition of seven new routine uses to its "Statement of General Routine Uses" for information subject to the Privacy Act. As required by the Privacy Act, the Agency provided an opportunity for interested persons to submit comments on these notices and routine uses. The Agency did not receive any comments.

DATES: July 5, 2005.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Scott A. Koch, Information and Privacy Coordinator, Central Intelligence Agency, Washington, DC 20505 or by telephone, 703-613-1287.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Central Intelligence Agency completed a zero-based, Agency-wide review of its Privacy Act systems of records. As a result of this review, the Agency determined that its Privacy Act notices required extensive modifications to more accurately describe the records systems currently maintained by the Agency. Rather than making numerous, piecemeal revisions, the Agency decided to draft and republish updated notices for all of its Privacy Act systems of records. The modified notices reflected several factors: The consolidation of records systems resulting from advances in information technology; the elimination of records systems no longer in use; the combination of previously separate records systems that serve a common purpose and are under common control; the addition of notices for records systems not previously identified as being subject to the Privacy Act; and the addition of notices for newly-created records systems. The proposed revised notices were published in the May 24, 2005 issue of the Federal Register. The Agency provided an opportunity for interested persons to submit comments. Because the Agency did not receive comments, no changes have been made to the notices, as proposed. The systems notices took effect on July 5, 2005.

In addition, the Agency had proposed a modification to one of its existing routine uses and the addition of seven new routine uses to its "Statement of General Routine Uses," in order to clarify and increase the public's knowledge of the circumstances in which the Central Intelligence Agency may disclose information from Privacy Act systems of records and to enhance the Agency's ability to share information essential to the conduct of its national security mission. With the exception of the proposed modification to Routine Use 4 and the proposed addition of Routine Uses 8 through 14, no other changes to the provisions of the Agency's published "Statement of General Routine Uses" were proposed. The proposed modification and addition to "Statement of General routine Uses" were published in the May 24, 2005 issue of the Federal Register. The Agency provided an opportunity for interested persons to submit comments. Because the Agency did not receive comments, no changes have been made to the routine uses, as proposed. The modified and additional routine uses took effect on July 5, 2005.

Nothing in the revised systems notices or modified or new routine uses indicates any change in the Central Intelligence Agency's authorities or practices regarding the collection and maintenance of information about citizens and lawful permanent residents of the United States, nor do the changes impact any individual's rights to access or to amend their records pursuant to the Privacy Act.

Dated: July 8, 2005.

Edmund Cohen,

Chief of Information Management Services.

Statement of General Routine Uses for the Central Intelligence Agency

The following routine uses apply to, and are incorporated by reference into, each system of records maintained by the CIA:

1. In the event that a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency to carry out its functions indicates, or relates to, a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency whether federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation, or charged with the responsibility to take appropriate administrative action, or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

2. A record from this system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a Central Intelligence Agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance or special access, or the performance of the Agency's acquisition functions.

3. A record from this system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a federal, state, or local agency, or other appropriate entities, or individuals, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance or special access, the reporting or an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the entity's decision on the matter.

4. A record from a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency may be disclosed, as a routine use, in the course of presenting information or evidence to a court, magistrate, special master, administrative law judge, or administrative board or panel, including disclosures made pursuant to statutes or regulations governing the conduct of such proceedings.

5. A record from this system of records may be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with the review of private relief legislation, as set forth in OMB Circular No. A-19, at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in the Circular.

6. A record from a system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, to NARA (GSA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

7. A record from this system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a federal, state, or local agency, other appropriate entities or individuals, or, through established liaison channels, to selected foreign governments, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the record was collected and is undertaken to enable the Central Intelligence Agency to carry out its responsibilities under the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, the CIA Act of 1949, as amended, Executive Order 12333 or any successor order, national security directives applicable to the Agency and classified implementing procedures approved by the Attorney General promulgated pursuant to such Orders and directives, as well as statutes, Executive orders and directives of general applicability. This routine use is not intended to supplant the other routine uses published by the Central Intelligence Agency.

8. A record from a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a Member of Congress or Congressional staffer in response to an inquiry from that Member of Congress or Congressional staffer made at the written request of the constituent who is the subject of the record.

9. A record from a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency may be disclosed, as a routine use, to the public or to the media for release to the public, to enable the Agency to respond to charges of illegal or improper activity, professional misconduct, or incompetence when such allegations have become publicly known, and the General Counsel determines that such disclosures are necessary to preserve public confidence in the Agency and the integrity of its processes, or to demonstrate the accountability of the Agency and its employees.

10. A record from a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency may be disclosed, as a routine use, to any Federal agency when documents or other information obtained from that agency are used in compiling the record, and the record is relevant to the official responsibilities of that agency.

11. A record from a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency may be disclosed, as a routine use, to representatives of the Department of Justice or of any other entity responsible for representing the interests of the Central Intelligence Agency in connection with judicial, administrative or other proceedings. Records may also be disclosed to representatives of the Department of Justice and other U.S. Government entities, to the extent necessary to obtain their advice on any matter within their official responsibilities. Records may also be disclosed to representatives of private entities designated by the Central Intelligence Agency to represent Agency interests, to the extent necessary for the Central Intelligence Agency to obtain advice on any matter.

12. A record from a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency may be disclosed, as a routine use, to individual Members or staff of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence in connection with the exercise of the Committees' intelligence oversight and legislative functions, when such disclosures are necessary to a lawful activity of the United States, and the General Counsel of the Central Intelligence Agency determines that such disclosures are otherwise lawful.

13. A record from a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency may be disclosed, as a routine use, to the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, the Intelligence Oversight Board, any successor organizations, and any intelligence oversight entities established by the President, when the head of the Central Intelligence Agency determines that disclosure will assist these entities in the performance of their oversight functions.

14. In the event that none of the routine uses listed above is applicable, a record from a system of records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency may be disclosed, as a routine use, to other appropriate recipients, if such dissemination is necessary to a lawful activity of the United States, and the General Counsel of the Central Intelligence Agency, in consultation with the Department of Justice, determines that such dissemination is lawful.
