[Docket No.: OJP (OJP)–1333]

RIN 1121–AA56

Public Safety Officers' Benefits Program

AGENCY: Office of Justice Programs, Justice.

ACTION: Notice of proposed rulemaking with request for comments.

SUMMARY: The Office of Justice Programs, Department of Justice, proposes this rule to amend regulations which implement the Public Safety Officers' Benefits Act, as amended. The Act provides financial support to certain public safety officers, or their survivors and families, when such officers die, or become permanently and totally disabled, as a result of line-of-duty injuries. The proposed rule would incorporate recent statutory amendments to the program, specifically, to provide coverage for chaplains and the addition of certain life insurance beneficiaries, and to provide coverage for certain heart attack and stroke cases. The proposed rule also would amend the regulations to incorporate longstanding internal agency policy and practice, court decisions, and certain technical changes, in order to make the regulations more comprehensive and user-friendly.

DATES: Comments must be received by no later than 5 p.m., E.S.T., on September 26, 2005.

ADDRESSES: Please address all comments regarding this proposed rule, by U.S. mail, to: Hope Janke, Counsel to the Director, Bureau of Justice Assistance, Office of Justice Programs, 810 7th Street, NW., Washington, DC 20531; by telefacsimile transmission, to: Hope Janke, Counsel to the Director, at (202) 305–1367; or by e-mail, to: PSOBREGS@usdoj.gov. SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The Public Safety Officers Benefits (PSOB) Program is administered by the Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA), Office of Justice Programs (OJP), Department of Justice, pursuant to the statute, as a means of providing a one-time financial payment to the statutorily-eligible survivors of public safety officers who die as the direct and proximate result of a traumatic injury sustained in the line of duty, as well as educational assistance for certain of those survivors; and also providing a one-time financial payment to public safety officers who are permanently and totally disabled as the direct result of a catastrophic injury sustained in the line of duty, as well as educational assistance for their spouses and certain of their children. As the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals observed, however, in Russell v. United States, 637 F.2d 1255, 1261 (1981), the statute did not create a comprehensive insurance-type compensation program, similar to those administered by many States and municipalities. See also Rose v. Arkansas State Police, 479 U.S. 1 (1986) (per curiam); Chacon v. United States, 32 Fed. Cl. 684, 687 (1995); Holstine v. Dep't of Justice, No. 80–7477, slip op. at 2 (9th Cir. Aug. 4, 1982).

The statute, rather, provides for three specific types of benefits, each expressly dependent upon implementing regulations that BJA is authorized to issue: (1) “[i]n any case in which [BJA] determines, under regulations issued pursuant to [the Act], that a public safety officer has died as the direct and proximate result of a personal injury sustained in the line of duty,” BJA is to provide a one-time financial benefit to the statutorily-eligible survivors; (2)

“[i]n accordance with regulations pursuant to this [Act],” BJA is to provide a one-time financial benefit to public safety officers who “become permanently and totally disabled as the direct result of a catastrophic injury sustained in the line of duty”; and (3) pursuant to “reasonable and necessary regulations” that it may “promulgate * * * to implement [the Act],” BJA is to provide certain higher-education assistance for statutorily-eligible children and spouses of public safety officers who are killed or permanently and totally disabled in the line of duty. BJA—on which, by statute, the sole “[r]esponsibility for making final determinations * * * rest[s]”—is prepared to pay, in a timely fashion, every eligible claim relating to an officer who has died or been permanently and totally disabled in the line of duty, according to the requirements of the law.

Pursuant to the foregoing authorities, and to BJA's additional express statutory authority generally “to establish such rules, regulations, and procedures as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of [the Act]” (which the statute also expressly provides will be “determinative of conflict of laws issues arising under [the Act]”), this rule now is being proposed—(1) to implement various statutory amendments to the program; (2) to incorporate longstanding internal policies, practices, and guidance, as well as many judicial holdings, into the regulation; (3) to make certain refining and technical changes to the regulation; and (4) to restructure the regulation to make it easier for the public to use.

Recent statutory amendments to the PSOB program include section 305 of the Disaster Mitigation Act of 2000, Pub. L. 106–390 (“Disaster Mitigation Act”) (effective for injuries sustained on or after Oct. 30, 2000); sections 611 and 613 of the USA PATRIOT Act, Pub. L. 107–56 (the former section effective Oct. 26, 2001; the latter section effective retroactively for injuries occurring on or after Jan. 1, 2001); the Mychal Judge Police and Fire Chaplains Public Safety Officers' Benefit Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107–196 (“Mychal Judge Act”) (effective retroactively for injuries occurring on or after Sept. 11, 2001); and the Hometown Heroes Survivors Benefits Act of 2003, Pub. L. 108–182 (“Hometown Heroes Act”) (effective for injuries sustained on or after Dec. 15, 2003). These amendments represent an expansion of the scope of the PSOB Act and clarify some of its provisions.

Section 305 of the Disaster Mitigation Act amended the PSOB Act to include certain public employees performing disaster relief activities as eligible public safety officers. Under the amendment, eligible disaster relief workers include those performing official duties as either employees of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) or employees of state, local or tribal emergency management agencies or civil defense agencies performing official duties in cooperation with FEMA; and such official duties must be conducted in relation to a major disaster or emergency and must be hazardous in nature. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the proposed rule would provide a convenient, short-hand label for these particular employees, defining them in proposed 28 CFR 32.3 as "disaster relief worker[s]," in keeping with the requirements described in the PSOB Act at 42 U.S.C. 3796b(8)(B) and (C); and would make corresponding amendments to the "line of duty" provisions found in the current regulation.

Section 611 of the USA PATRIOT Act provides for expedited payment of death and disability benefits under specific circumstances relating to a "terrorist attack," authorizing BJA to accept certain certifications from employing public agencies as prima facie evidence in determining claims for those benefits that arise from those circumstances. Section 611 thus creates a statutory distinction between cases described in that section (where resort to certain certifications as prima facie evidence is authorized) and all others (where resort to such certifications as prima facie evidence is not authorized). Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), in addition to proposing a few other implementing provisions (generally of a clarifying nature), the proposed rule defines "terrorist attack," largely by reference to analogous definitions enacted in the USA PATRIOT Act itself, but also taking into account the circumstances that prompted the enactment of section 611 and the rationale that supports the statutory distinction that section makes. The proposed definition of "terrorist attack" specifies the Department of Justice officers who must make determinations thereunder, and the standards they are to apply in making them; these officers, of course, may delegate their authority to make these determinations to any of their subordinates. It should be noted, however, that any determinations that may be made pursuant to the proposed definition of "terrorist attack" would be only for the purpose of establishing what PSOB Act claims may fall within the scope of section 611 of the USA PATRIOT Act, and should not be understood to apply in any other context, or to create any inference that prosecution is warranted under the criminal code; e.g., at 18 U.S.C. 2332b (if only because the standard proposed in the rule is less stringent than the standard required for a designation of international terrorism under 18 U.S.C. 2332b).

Section 613(a) of the USA PATRIOT Act increased the base amount for PSOB death and disability benefit awards to $250,000, which is adjustable for inflation pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(h). This amendment does not affect amounts payable for deaths or injuries occurring before January 1, 2001. Unlike the current regulation, the proposed rule does not specify specific dollar amounts for death and disability benefit awards (which quickly would fall out of date, as a result of the statutory inflation adjustment), thus avoiding the potential for confusion of the public.

The Mychal Judge Act provides that certain chaplains may be eligible public safety officers under the PSOB Act. Just as with law enforcement officers, firefighters, and ambulance crew and rescue squad members, covered chaplains must be serving a public agency in an official capacity, with or without compensation, at the time of death or catastrophic injury. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the proposed rule implements this amendment to the PSOB Act by clarifying the definition of the term "chaplain" and by correspondingly expanding the provision in the current regulation relating to "line of duty."

The Mychal Judge Act also provides that in cases where an officer has died without a surviving spouse or eligible children, the person designated as beneficiary on the officer's "most recently executed life insurance policy" shall receive the PSOB benefit. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and 3796c(a), the proposed rule provides the definitions and procedures necessary to process claims for this category of beneficiary (e.g., "execution of a life insurance policy," "most recently executed life insurance policy of a public safety officer," "beneficiary of a life insurance policy of a public safety officer").

The Hometown Heroes Act amends the PSOB Act to make certain provisions for public safety officers who die as a result of heart attack or stroke under certain circumstances expressly set forth in the amendment.

Specifically, the amendment creates a statutory presumption of death by a line of duty injury, which may be rebutted by "competent medical evidence to the contrary," in cases where a public safety officer dies of heart attack or stroke while engaging in, (or within 24 hours of engaging in) "nonroutine stressful or strenuous physical [line of duty] activity." Where the requirements of the Hometown Heroes Act are not met (e.g., where disability (rather than death) results), the absence of the statutory presumption does not necessarily entail the failure of claims based on heart attack or stroke; all such claims, rather, are governed by the ordinary rules otherwise applicable to the PSOB program. See, e.g., Greeley v. United States, 50 F.3d 1009 (Fed. Cir. 1995); Durco v. United States, 14 Cl. Ct. 424 (1988); North v. United States, 555 F.Supp. 382 (Cl. Ct. 1982); Russell v. United States, 231 Ct. Cl. 1022 (1982); Smykowski v. United States, 647 F.2d 1103 (Ct. Cl. 1981); Morrow v. United States, 647 F.2d 1099 (Ct. Cl. 1981).

A consequence of the new statutory language is that several new terms, which were not previously included in the PSOB Act, need to be defined to implement the amendment. With the clarity provided by the proposed rule, the user will have a better appreciation for how the amendment will be implemented by BJA, the hearing officer, and the judiciary. In drafting the regulatory definitions for these terms pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and 3796c(a), BJA consulted extensively with the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology and other medical experts knowledgeable in the field of cardiovascular disease and work-life-related diseases and afflictions, with particular focus on the circumstances surrounding heart attacks and strokes among public safety officers. Further, in order to elicit input and appreciate any potential concerns of the practitioners, BJA held several meetings with groups such as the Fraternal Order of Police Grand Lodge, NC State Fireman's Association, International Association of the Chiefs of Police, the National Fire Fighters Foundation, National Sheriffs Association, Congressional Fire Services Institute, and Concerns of Police Survivors. It is only after receiving much guidance and input from these experts, and considering and deliberating over their advice that the regulation is now proposed for public comment. (In noting that various individuals and groups participated in meetings and discussions with OJP staff, OJP does not wish to imply that these individuals or groups have or have not endorsed the provisions contained within the proposed rule.)

This program has evolved over three decades, and internal agency policy, practice, and guidance—based on internal legal opinions, on judicial rulings, and on the considerable and broad-ranging experience and expertise BJA has derived from innumerable claims—have come increasingly to inform the agency's decision-making, gradually taking on significant authority. Little of this is reflected on the face of the current regulation, however. And unfortunately, despite attempts over the years variously to disseminate information on BJA's evolving policy, practice, and guidance, to potential beneficiaries and their representatives, the efforts have been less successful than OJP would like. For example, since November 1981, the publication, Legal Interpretations of the Public Safety Officers' Benefits Act, has been a guiding authority for BJA, program hearing officers, OJP, and the judiciary. This publication has been relied upon so much that the legal opinions found in this publication have been quoted as authority in numerous cases decided by the United States Court of Federal Claims (and its predecessors) and United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. E.g., Yanco v. United States, 258 F.3d 1356 (Fed. Cir. 2001); Chacon v. United States, 48 F.3d 508 (Fed. Cir. 1995), aff'd 32 Fed. Cl. at 687–688; Durco, 14 Cl. Ct. at 427; Tafoya v. United States, 8 Cl. Ct. 256, 262–265 (Cl. Ct. 1985); North, 555 F.Supp. at 386; Morrow, 647 F.2d at 1101–1102. Unfortunately, many are not aware of this publication's availability, or of its value in indicating the relevant BJA internal policies and practice. A principal reason for the proposed rule, therefore, is OJP's desire that the most significant internal guiding principles, opinions, policy, practice, and other information about the program be readily available, transparent, and easier for the public, including public safety officers and their survivors, and practitioners, to understand and apply.

The regulation currently is configured in such a way that simply introducing the new material described above into the existing language would be inadvisable. For this reason, OJP has taken the opportunity to propose a simplification and restructuring of the entire regulation, breaking it down into six distinct subparts. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), 3796c(a), and 3796d–3(a), Subpart A proposes general terms and procedures common to all three PSOB benefit components. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and 3796c(a), Subpart B proposes terms and procedures applicable only to the death benefit component; pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(b) and 3796c(a), Subpart C proposes those applicable only to the disability benefit component; and pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796d–3(a) and 3796c(a), Subpart D proposes those applicable only to the educational assistance benefit component.

Accordingly, pursuant to the proposed rule, those seeking to understand the basic law applicable to any one of these three PSOB benefits must refer to the PSOB Act itself, of course, and thereafter only to Subpart A (General Provisions) and to the applicable Subpart for the benefit at issue (be it Subpart B, C, or D). At present, for example, a disability claimant would by necessity have to skip around the regulation to appreciate what may be necessary for his particular type of claim; under the proposed rule, he would have to read only the Act itself, and Subparts A and C.

Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), 3796c(a), and 3796d–3(a), the last two subparts, Subparts E and F, propose procedures for hearing officer determinations and intra-agency review.

The various "Definitions" sections proposed in the subparts comprise three different types of definitions: (1) A concise comprehensive explanation of a precise term or phrase (e.g., "Adopted child of a public safety officer means * * *"); (2) a non-comprehensive, non-exhaustive definition (e.g., "Independent contractor includes * * *"); or (3) a contextual definition, setting forth the meaning of the term as used only in a particular or specific context (e.g., "Cause—A death, injury, or disability is caused by intentional misconduct if * * *").

The general consonance of the express provisions of the proposed rule with the substance of current practice, see, e.g., Porter v. United States, 63 Fed. Cl. 143 (2005); One Feather v. United States, 61 Fed. Cl. 619 (2004), should not be understood to suggest that some differences are not being proposed. The current regulation, for example, at 28 CFR 32.2(c), .4, and .5, contains provisions that differ significantly from those proposed here pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a). As a result, the holdings in Bice v. United States, 61 Fed. Cl. 420 (2004); Davis v. United States, 50 Fed. Cl. 192 (2001); and Davis v. United States, 46 Fed. Cl. 421 (2000), and that portion of the holding in Demutiis v. United States, 48 Fed. Cl. 81 (2000) that was affirmed in 291 F.3d 1373 (Fed. Cir. 2002)—all of which are grounded in one or more of those three sections of the current regulation—would be affected much as the holding in Melville v. United States, 231 Ct. Cl. 776 (1982), and a portion of the holding in Harold v. United States, 634 F.2d 547, 549–552 (Ct. Cl. 1980), were nullified or rendered moot by subsequent amendments to the PSOB Act itself, and the jurisdictional portion of the holding in Russell, 637 F.2d at 1256–1260, was nullified by subsequent amendments to the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, see, e.g., Davis v. United States, 169 F.3d 1196 (9th Cir. 1999); Wydra v. United States, 722 F.2d 834 (D.C. Cir. 1983); Tafoya v. Dept. of Justice, 748 F.2d 1389 (10th Cir. 1984); see also, e.g., LaBare v. United States, No. C04–4974 MHP, slip op. at 3–5 (N.D. Ca. Mar. 10, 2005); Ramos-Vélez v. United States, 826 F.Supp. 615 (D. P.R. 1993); Russell v. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, 637 F.2d 354 (5th Cir. Unit A 1981); Lankford v. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, 620 F.2d 35 (4th Cir. 1980), of which the PSOB Act is a part.

Further to the foregoing general discussion, the following are a number of specific items that, pursuant to the proposed rule, would be reflected in the regulation:

1. Line of Duty

Since the original enactment of the PSOB Act, BJA and courts uniformly have recognized the nature of the acts performed by a public safety officer is key to determining whether he suffered a line-of-duty injury within the meaning of the Act. See, e.g., Tafoya, 8 Cl. Ct. at 262; Harold, 634 F.2d at 551–552. In keeping with these decisions and pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the definitions of "line of duty activity or action" and "line of duty injury" in the proposed rule, which largely are drawn from provisions in the existing regulations and practice, make clear that in order for an injury to be considered a "line of duty injury," the injury must occur when the public safety officer is engaged in activity or an action that he is obligated or legally authorized to perform as a public safety officer, see, e.g., Wydra v. United States, No. 764–83C, slip op. (Cl. Ct. Jan. 31, 1986); North, 555 F.Supp. at 387; Howard v. United States, 229 Ct. Cl. 507, 510 (1981); Budd v. United States, 225 Ct. Cl. 725 (1980), with the cognizance of the officer's public agency, which typically is in the best position to provide line-of-duty evidence in connection with a claim under the Act.

Additionally, and also pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the proposed rule defines "authorized commuting” by setting out the specific circumstances where a public safety officer would be considered to be engaged in a line of duty action or activity while commuting to or from work, or to a particular emergency. Essentially, this definition articulates—for the first time in a regulation—three particular exceptions to the “coming and going rule” that have been recognized by the PSOB Program since soon after the original enactment of the Act. See, e.g., Russell, 637 F.2d at 1265–1266.

2. Serving a Public Agency in an Official Capacity

The PSOB Act defines the term “public safety officer,” for most purposes, as “an individual serving a public agency in an official capacity” as a law enforcement officer, firefighter, chaplain, or rescue squad or ambulance crew member. 42 U.S.C. 3796b(8). The Act also defines “public agency” as a government (Federal, State, territorial, or of a district or possession of the United States) or “any unit of local government, department, agency, or instrumentality of any of the foregoing.” 42 U.S.C. 3796b(7). Some confusion has arisen over the years as to whether employees or volunteers who serve independent contractors or non-public entities that are working for public agencies are “serving a public agency in an official capacity” or are “employees” within the meaning of the PSOB Act, or whether those independent contractors or non-public entities are “instrumentalities” of public agencies within the meaning of the Act. Although BJA’s application of all the foregoing terms (largely drawn from pre-existing law, see, e.g., Taylor v. Standard Gas and Electric Co., 96 F.2d 693, 704 (1938)) has been consistent over the years, see, e.g., LaBare, slip op. at 2, 6; Porter, 63 Fed. Cl. at 143 n.5; Chacon, 48 F.3d at 511–513, aff’d 32 Fed. Cl. at 687–689; Holstine, slip op. at 1–2, the current regulation does not on its face reflect that application well. In an effort to assist claimants, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the proposed rule sets out key definitions to clarify these terms within the four corners of the regulation. For example, the definition of the term “instrumentality” would set forth requirements that the entity in question be legally established, act as a functional part of a public agency, function with a solely public character, and serve the public indiscriminately, and be cloaked with the authority of a public agency for purposes of sovereign immunity or tort liability. For another example, the definition of “official capacity” would clarify that an individual serves a public agency in an official capacity if his service is “officially authorized, -recognized, or -designated as functionally within or part of” a public agency, and “his acts and omissions, while so serving, are legally those of” his public agency, which recognizes them as such. See, e.g., Chacon, 48 F.3d at 512, aff’d 32 Fed. Cl. at 687–688.

3. Law Enforcement Officer

Over several decades of administering the PSOB Act, BJA has received a number of claims with respect to individuals who did not have authority actually to engage in “crime and juvenile delinquency control or reduction, or enforcement of the laws” in the way that “police, corrections, probation, parole, or judicial officers”—who are specified in the Act—do. 42 U.S.C. 3796b(7). Claimants there argued unsuccessfully that tenuous or distant connections to the criminal law made the decedent (or disabled person) a “law enforcement officer” within the meaning of the Act. The PSOB Act is not intended to cover all personnel who may happen to be employed by a law enforcement agency, but only those who actually are “law enforcement officers.” For this reason, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the proposed rule clarifies the definition of “law enforcement officer” in the PSOB Act by defining—for the first time as a matter of regulation rather than policy—the terms “crime,” “criminal law,” “enforcement of the criminal law,” “enforcement of the laws,” and “involvement.”

4. Firefighter/Rescue Squad/Ambulance Crew Member

The definition of firefighter in the PSOB Act combines two distinct concepts by providing that the term “firefighter” includes a “public employee member of a rescue squad and ambulance crew.” In order to avoid the confusion that has arisen in certain cases where it was not clear whether an individual’s actual authority was to act as a firefighter or as a public employee member of a rescue squad or ambulance crew, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the proposed rule bifurcates the statutory definition of “firefighter” as it appears in the PSOB Act into two separate regulatory definitions—“firefighter” and “rescue squad or ambulance crew member”—each of which provides more specific descriptions of the nature of each position. With this change, a rescue squad or ambulance crew member would be covered as a “rescue squad or ambulance crew member,” as a matter of regulation, rather than as a “firefighter,” as a matter of statute. In either case, however, the substance of the result mandated by the Act, see, e.g., Chacon, 48 F.3d at 512–513, aff’d 32 Fed. Cl. at 688–689, of course, would remain the same.

5. Injury

The proposed rule defines “injury” using nearly identical language from the existing PSOB regulation for “traumatic injury”: A “traumatic physical wound (or a traumatized physical condition of the body) caused by some external force * * * but excluding stress or strain.” See Greeley, 50 F.3d at 1011–1012; Canfield v. United States, No. 339–79, slip op. at 1–2 (Fed. Cir. Dec. 29, 1982), rev’d No. 339–79C, slip op. (Ct. Cl. July 27, 1982); Durco, 14 Cl. Ct. at 428; North, 555 F.Supp. at 387; Russell, 231 Ct. Cl. at 1025; Smykowski, 647 F.2d at 1105; Morrow, 647 F.2d at 1101. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the proposed rule, which is consonant with current practice with respect to injury generally, see, e.g., Brister v. United States, No. 01–180C, slip op. at 3–6 (Fed. Cl. Mar. 27, 2002); Cartwright v. United States, 16 Cl. Ct. 238 (1989), clarifies the definition of “injury” with respect to “mental strain,” to conform to the express reading of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in Yanco, 258 F.3d at 1365, aff’d 45 Fed. Cl. 782, 788–792 (2002); see Porter, 63 Fed. Cl. at 149 & n.6; Davison v. United States, No. 99–361C, slip op. at 8–11 (Fed. Cl. Apr. 19, 2002).

6. Disability

Current rules pertaining to the disability benefit are simplified in proposed Subpart C, which (pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(b) and 3796c(a)) independently defines “permanently disabled” and “totally disabled,” in recognition that a subject officer may meet the criteria of one or the other requirement, but not both. Also pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(b) and 3796c(a), the proposed rule, which otherwise conforms to existing practice, see, e.g., Porter, 63 Fed. Cl. at 147–150, incorporates an entirely new procedural alternative into the disability benefit claim process, allowing for “reconsideration” of certain disability denial determinations, at the option of the claimant. The procedure for reconsideration of disability claims responds to the reality that a line of duty injury may not have caused the public safety officer to be totally and permanently disabled at the time of the initial claim application, but may do so with the passage of time.

7. Limitations on Benefits

Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the proposed rule defines a number of terms to implement the provision in the PSOB Act that sets forth limitations on benefits when public safety officer misconduct has occurred, (e.g., “intention,” “disturbance,” “drugs or other substances,” “gross negligence,” “intentional misconduct,” “intentional action or activity,” “voluntary intoxication at the time of death or catastrophic injury,” and “mental faculties”). See 42 U.S.C. 3796a. These definitions essentially are drawn from the existing regulations or current practice. See, e.g., Wydra, slip op. at 3–5; Tafoya, 8 Cl. Ct. at 260–266; Harold, 229 Ct. Cl. at 508–510; Budd, 225 Ct. Cl. at 727–730. Also pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), and 3796c(a), the rule proposes evidentiary standards to determine if a public safety officer was intoxicated by drugs or other substances, by incorporating terms used in the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 802(6) and 812(a)). In this way, the rule proposes to provide a workable mechanism by which to determine an occurrence of voluntary intoxication by drugs, which mechanism would parallel the one set forth in the PSOB Act itself for intoxication by alcohol. See 42 U.S.C. 3796b(5).

8. Timing for Filing Claims; Redeterminations; Appeals; Review by Director

Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 3796(a) and (b), 3796c(a), and 3796d–3(a), the rule proposes clear procedural schedules for filing and notice requirements, and clear provisions for exhaustion of remedies, applicable to each stage of a PSOB claim. These schedules and provisions, which generally are derived from current practice, see, e.g., LaBare, slip op. at 5; Yanco, 45 Fed. Cl. at 793; Tafoya, 8 Cl. Ct. at 259–260 nn.2 & 4, advance the efficient and effective administrative processing of claims, and avoid undue delay on the part of the PSOB Office, the hearing officer, or BJA, or the claimant. The proposed schedules would provide specific periods of time by the end of which filings of requests, motions, appeals, etc., would have to be actually received by BJA. In most instances in which a time period related to a filing is proposed, the timeframe is thirty-three (33) days, which is derived from a standard thirty-day period, plus three additional days—thereby incorporating the additional time customarily given to parties in civil litigation, under the “Mailbox Rule,” when mailing their filings. See, e.g.,

Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(e). A definitive, concrete, and easily-established timeframe would allow for the timely disposition of claims.

Generally, the rule proposes the following scheme: If a claim is denied by the PSOB Office, a claimant may request a determination by a hearing officer, whereupon, the hearing officer conducts a de novo review of the claim and issues a determination. If the hearing officer denies the claim, the claimant may opt to appeal to the Director of BJA; where a hearing officer’s determination results in an approval of a claim, the Director shall review it.

II. Regulatory Certifications

Administrative Procedure Act

The Office of Justice Program’s publishing of the proposed rule with a comment period of 30 (thirty) days is to facilitate the timely implementation of the amendments in order to bring resolution to an estimated sixty-five Hometown Heroes Act cases that require the guidance in this regulation in order to be determined. To extend the comment period beyond this timeframe would unnecessarily delay the implementation of the provisions of this proposed rule and would be contrary to the public interest because it is in the public interest to pay in an expeditious manner benefits to public safety officers, or their family members.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Office of Justice Programs, in accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 605(b)), has reviewed this regulation and by approving it certifies that this regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities for the following reasons: This proposed rule addresses Federal agency procedures; furthermore, this proposed rule makes minor amendments to clarify existing regulations and agency practice concerning death and disability payments and assistance to eligible public safety officers and their survivors and does nothing to increase the financial burden on any small entities.

Executive Order 12866

This proposed rule has been drafted and reviewed in accordance with Executive Order No. 12866 (Regulatory Planning and Review), sec. 1(b), Principles of Regulation. The costs of implementing this proposed rule are minimal. Claimants must complete and submit no more than three forms; a “Claim for Death Benefits,” OMB Form No. 1121–0024; a “Report of Public Safety Officer’s Death,” OMB Form No. 1121–0025; and a “Consent to Release Information” pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b); and supply adequate documentation concerning the public safety officer death. The only costs to OJP consist of appropriated funds. The benefits of the proposed rule far exceed the costs. The minor amendments clarify the preexisting regulations and provide coverage for chaplains, life insurance beneficiaries, and the survivors of certain heart attack and stroke victims.

The Office of Justice Programs has determined that this proposed rule is a “significant regulatory action” under Executive Order No. 12866 (Regulatory Planning and Review), sec. 3(f), and accordingly this proposed rule has been reviewed by the Office of Management and Budget.

Executive Order 13132

This proposed rule will not have substantial direct effects on the States, on the relationship between the National Government and the States, or on distribution of power and responsibilities among the various levels of government. The PSOB Act provides benefits to individuals and does not impose any special or unique requirements on States or localities. Therefore, in accordance with Executive Order No. 13132, it is determined that this proposed rule does not have sufficient federalism implications to warrant the preparation of a federalism assessment.

Executive Order 12988—Civil Justice Reform

This proposed rule meets the applicable standards set forth in secs. 3(a) & (b)(2) of Executive Order No. 12988.

Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995

This proposed rule will not result in the expenditure by State, local and tribal governments, in the aggregate, or by the private sector, of $100,000,000 or more in any one year, and it will not significantly or uniquely affect small governments. The PSOB Act is a federal benefits program that provides benefits directly to qualifying individuals. Therefore, no actions were deemed necessary under the provisions of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995.

Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996

This proposed rule is not a major rule as defined by section 804 of the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996. This proposed rule will not result in an annual effect on the economy of $100,000,000 or more; a major increase in costs or prices; or significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based companies to compete with foreign-based companies in domestic and export markets.

Paperwork Reduction Act

The collection of information requirements contained in this interim rule have been submitted to and approved by OMB, in accordance with the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. 3501, et seq.). Claimants seeking benefits under the PSOB Act must complete and return two OMB-approved forms: a "Claim for Death Benefits," OMB Form No. 1121 0024; and a "Report of Public Safety Officer's Death," OMB Form No. 1121-0025.
