approved and due to expire on August 31, 2006. The ICR describes the nature of the information collection activity and its expected burden and costs.

Abstract: The use of pesticides to increase crop production often results in pesticide residues in or on the crop. To protect the public health from unsafe pesticide residues, EPA sets limits on the nature and level of residues permitted pursuant to section 408 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (FFDCA). A pesticide may not be used on food or feed crops unless the Agency has established a tolerance (maximum residue limit) for the pesticide residues on that crop, or established an exemption from the requirement to have a tolerance.

It is EPA's responsibility to ensure that the maximum residue levels likely to be found in or on food/feed crops are safe for human consumption through a careful review and evaluation of residue chemistry and toxicology data. In addition it must ensure that adequate enforcement of the tolerance can be achieved through the testing of submitted analytical methods. Once the data are deemed adequate to support the findings, EPA will establish the tolerance or grant an exemption from the requirement of a tolerance.

There are basically three types of tolerance actions:

• Permanent tolerance (or an exemption from the requirement for a permanent tolerance) for residues which would result from a pesticide use registered under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA).

• Temporary tolerance (or an exemption from the requirement for a temporary tolerance) to permit the sale of commodities containing residues resulting from authorized experimental use of an unregistered pesticide.

• Time-limited tolerance (or an exemption from the requirement for a time-limited tolerance) to permit the sale of commodities containing residues resulting from a pesticide whose use was authorized under section 18 of FIFRA.

This ICR only applies to the information collection activities associated with the submission of a petition for a tolerance action.

V. What are EPA's Burden and Cost Estimates for this ICR?

Under the PRA, "burden" means the total time, effort, or financial resources expended by persons to generate, maintain, retain, or disclose or provide information to or for a Federal Agency. For this collection it includes the time needed to review instructions; develop, acquire, install, and utilize technology and systems for the purposes of collecting, validating, and verifying information, processing and maintaining information, and disclosing and providing information; adjust the existing ways to comply with any previously applicable instructions and requirements; train personnel to be able to respond to a collection of information; search data sources; complete and review the collection of information; and transmit or otherwise disclose the information.

The ICR provides a detailed explanation of this estimate, which is only briefly summarized in this notice. The annual public burden is 258,900 hours. The following is a summary of the estimates taken from the ICR:

Respondents/affected entities: Any person seeking a tolerance action.

Estimated total number of potential respondents: 150.

Frequency of response: A petition is required only once for each raw or processed commodity on which the pesticide is used.

Estimated total/average number of responses for each respondent: 1.

Estimated total annual burden hours: 258,900.

Estimated total annual burden costs: $23,973,150.

VI. Are There Changes in the Estimates from the Last Approval?

Respondent costs for this ICR have increased due to inflationary adjustments in labor rates for both respondents and Agency personnel. As a result, there is an increase of $537,450 in the estimated total annual respondent cost (from $23,435,700 to $23,973,150).

VII. What is the Next Step in the Process for this ICR?

EPA will consider the comments received and amend the ICR as appropriate. The final ICR package will then be submitted to OMB for review and approval pursuant to 5 CFR 1320.12. EPA will issue another Federal Register notice pursuant to 5 CFR 1320.5(a)(1)(iv) to announce the submission of the ICR to OMB and the opportunity to submit additional comments to OMB. If you have any questions about this ICR or the approval process, please contact the person listed under FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT.
